THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

"The women of Columbus, Mississippi, animated by nobler sentiments than are many of their sisters, have shown themselves impartial in their offering made to the memory of the dead. They strewed flowers alike on the graves of the Confederate and of the National soldiers."—New York Tribune.

By the flow of the inland river,
Whence the fleets of iron have fled,
Where the blades of the grave-grass quiver,
Asleep are the ranks of the dead;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;—
Under the one, the Blue;
Under the other, the Gray.

These in the robings of glory,
Those in the gloom of defeat,
All with the battle-blood gory,
In the dusk of eternity meet;—
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Under the laurel, the Blue;
Under the willow, the Gray.

From the silence of sorrowful hours
The desolate mourners go;
Lovingly laden with flowers
Alike for the friend and the foe:—
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Under the roses the Blue,
Under the lilies, the Gray.

So with an equal splendor
The morning sun-rays fall,
With a touch, impartially tender,
On the blossoms blooming for all:
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;—
Broidered with gold, the Blue;
Mellowed with gold, the Gray.

So, when the Summer calleth,
On forest and field of grain
With an equal murmur falleth
The cooling drip of the rain;—
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;—
Wet with the rain, the Blue;
Wet with the rain, the Gray.

Sadly, but not with upbraiding,
The generous deed was done;
In the storm of the years that are fading,
No braver battle was won;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;—
Under the blossoms, the Blue
Under the garlands, the Gray.

No more shall the war-cry sever,
Or the winding rivers be red;
They banish our anger forever
When they laurel the graves of our dead!
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;—
Love and tears for the Blue,
Tears and love for the Gray.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH FOR HER.

In the days of the good colony of Virginia, the distinction between rich and poor was based upon laws which, like those of the Medes and Persians, altered not. One of the most devoted followers of this code was a wealthy planter, living in what is known as the Northern Neck. He was in all respects a frank, open hearted manly gentleman; but his estimate of his fellow men was founded upon the principles that governed the selection of his horses—blood. Wealth, too, was by no means an unimportant feature with him. He had our human weakness, and like all of us, was influenced more than he believed, by pounds, shillings and pence.

This Mr. G——had quite a large family, and among them was a daughter whose beauty was the standing toast of the country. She was just eighteen, and budding into lovely womanhood.—Not only was she beautiful in person, but her amiable disposition and many accomplishments made her more than ordinarily attractive, and half the gentlemen of the Northern Neck were already sighing for her love.

There was in the country at this time a young man who was already rising high in the esteem of his neighbors. He came of good family, but was, as yet, a poor young surveyor, who had taught himself his profession, and who had spent much of his time in traveling unknown forests, with nothing but his compass for his guide, and his chain for his companion, locating lands and settling disputed titles. He was a model of manly beauty, and excelled in the varied feats of strength in which the olden time Americans took such pride. He was calm and reserved, and there was about him a dignified sweetness of demeanor that accorded well with his frank independence of character. He was a great favorite with all who knew him, and there was no gathering to which he was not asked.

Mr. G——seemed especially to like the youug man, and it was not long before he insisted that the latter should abandon all ceremony in his visits to him, and come and go when he pleased. The invitation was heartily given, and as promptly accepted. The young man liked the planter, and he found the society of the beautiful Mary G—— a very strong attraction. The result was that he was frequently at the planter's residence; so frequently, indeed, that Mrs. G——felt called upon to ask her husband if he did not think it wrong to permit him to enjoy such unreserved intercourse with their daughter. The father only laughed at the idea, and said he hoped his daughter knew her position too well to allow anything like love for a poor surveyor to blind her to her duty and to her family.

Nevertheless Mary G——was not so fully impressed with this conviction of duty as was her father. She found more to admire in the poor surveyor than in all her wealthy and aristocratic suitors, and, almost before she knew it, her heart passed out of her keeping and was given to him. She loved him with all the honesty and devotion of her pure heart; and she would have thought it happiness to go out with him into the back woods and share his fatigues and troubles, no matter how much sorrow they might bring to her.

Nor did she love in vain. The young man, whose knowledge of the world was afterwards so great, had not been taught to consider as binding the distinctions which society drew between his position and that of the lady. He knew that in all that makes a man, he was the equal of any one. He believed that, except in wealth, he stood upon a perfect equality with Mary G——, and he loved her honestly and manfully, and no sooner had he satisfied himself upon the state of his own feelings than he confessed his devotion simply and truthfully, and received from the lady's lips the assurance that she loved him very dearly.

Scorning to occupy a doubtful position, or to cause the lady to conceal aught from her parents, the young man frankly and manfully asked Mr. G—— for his daughter's hand. Very angry grew the planter as he listened to the audacious proposal. He stormed and swore furiously, and denounced the young man as an ungrateful upstart.

'My daughter has always been accustomed to riding in her own carriage,' he said. 'Who are you, sir?'

'A gentleman, sir,' replied the young man quietly; and he left the house.

The lovers were parted. The lady married soon after a wealthy planter, and the young man went out again into the world to battle with his heart and conquer his unhappy passion. He subdued it; but although he afterwards married a woman whom he loved honesty and truthfully, and was worthy of his love, he was never wholly dead to his first love.

Time passed on, and the young man began to reap the reward of his labors. He had never been to the house of Mr. G——since his cruel repulse by the planter; but the latter could not forget him, as his name soon became familiar in every Virginia household. Higher and higher he rose every year, until he gained a position from which he could look down upon the proud planter. Wealth came to him, too. When the great struggle for independence dawned, he was in his prime, a happy husband, and one of the most distinguished men in America. The struggle went on, and soon the 'poor surveyor' held the highest and proudest position in the land.

When the American army passed in triumph through the streets of Williamsburg, the ancient capital of Virginia, after the surrender of Cornwallis, the officer riding at the head of the column chanced to glance up at one of the balconies which was crowded with ladies. Recognizing one of them he raised his hat and bowed profoundly.—There was a commotion in the balcony, and some one called for water, saying Mrs. Lee had fainted. Turning to a young man who rode near him the officer said gravely—

'Henry, I fear your mother has fainted. You had better leave the column and go to her.'

The speaker was George Washington, once the 'poor surveyor,' but then commander-in-chief of the armies of the United States. The young man was Colonel Henry Lee, the commander of the famous 'Light Cavalry Legion;' the lady was his mother, and formerly Miss G——, the belle of the 'Northern Neck.'

TRICKS OF A JUGGLER.

The far-famed Robert Heller cannot be satisfied with his legitimate triumphs before an audience, but occasionally does a neat thing for his own amusement, very much to the surprise of those who happen to be persent. On Saturday last, while passing an itinerant vender of cheap provisions, Mr. Heller suddenly paused and inquired:

"How do you sell eggs, Auntie?"

"Dem eggs," was the response; "dey am a pickeyune apiece—fresh, too, last one of 'em; biled 'em myself, and know dey's fust rate."

"Well, I'll try em," said the magician, as he laid down a bit of fractional currency. "Have you pepper and salt?"

"Yes, sir, dere dey is," said the sable saleswoman, watching her customer with intense interest.

Leisurely drawing out a neat little penknife, Mr. Heller proceeded very quietly to cut the egg exactly in half, when suddenly a bright, new twenty-five cent piece was discovered lying imbedded in the yolk, apparently as bright as when it came from the mint. Very coolly the great magician transferred the coin to his vest pocket, and taking up another egg, inquired:

"And how much do you ask for this egg?"

"De Lord bress my sole! Dat egg! De fact am, boss, dis egg is worth a dime, shure."

"All right," was the response; here's the dime. Now give me the egg."

Separating it with an exact precision that the colored lady watched eagerly, a quarter eagle was most carefully picked out of the centre of the egg, and placed in the vest pocket of the operator, as before. The old woman was thunderstruck, as well she might have been, and her customer had to ask her price for the third egg two or three times before he could obtain a reply.

"Dar's no use talkin', mars'r," said the bewildered old darkey. "I can't let you hab dat ere egg, nohow, for less dan a quarter. I declare to de Lord I can't."

"Very good," said Heller, whose imperturbable features were as solemn as an undertaker, "there is your quarter and here is the egg. All right."

As he opened the last egg, a brace of five dollar gold pieces were discovered snugly deposited in the very heart of the yolk, and jingling them merrily together in his little palm, the savant coolly remarked:

"Very good eggs, indeed. I rather like them; and while I am about it, I believe I will buy a dozen. What is the price?"

"I say price! screamed the amazed daughter of Ham. "You couldn' buy dem eggs, mars'r for all de money you's got. No! dat you could't. I'se gwine to take dem eggs all home, I is, and dat money in dem eggs, all 'longs to me. It does dat. Couldn't sell no more of dem eggs, nohow."

Amid the roar of the spectators, the benighted African started to her domicil to "smash dem eggs," but with what success we are unable to relate.

"GIVE US THIS DAY OUR DAILY BREAD."

In a miserable cottage at the bottom of a hill, two children hovered over a smouldering fire. A tempest raged without, a fearful tempest, against which man and beast were alike powerless. A poor old miser, much poorer than those shivering children, though he had heaps of money at home, drew his ragged cloak around him as he crouched down at the threshold of the miserable door. He dared not enter for fear they would ask for shelter, and he could not move for the storm.

"I am hungry, Nettie."

"So am I, I've hunted for a potato paring, and can't find any,"

"What an awful storm!"

"Yes the old tree has blown down. I guess God took care that it didn't blow on the house. See, it certainly would have killed us."

"If He could do that, couldn't He send us bread."

"I guess so—let's pray 'Our Father,' and when we come to that part, stop till we get some bread."

So they began, and the miser crouching and shivering listened. When they paused, expecting in their childish faith to see some miraculous manifestation, a human feeling stole into his heart, as an angel to soften it. He had bought a loaf of bread, thinking it would last him a great while, but the silence of the two children spake louder to him than the voice of many waters. He opened the door softly, threw in the loaf, and then listened to the wild eager cry of delight that came from the half-famished little ones.

"It dropped down from Heaven, didn't it?" continued the younger: "Yes I mean to love God forever for giving us bread because we asked him."

"We'll ask him every day, won't we? Why, I never thought God was so good, did you?"

"Yes, I always thought so, but I never quite knew it before."

"Let's ask him to give father work to do all the time, so we never need be hungry again; he'll do it, I'm sure."

The storm passed—the miser went home. It was no longer barren.

In a few weeks he died, but not before he had given the cottage, which was his, to the poor laboring man.

And the little children ever after felt a sweet and solemn emotion, when in their devotions they came to those trustful words:

"Give us this day our daily bread."

HORRIBLE SCAFFOLD SCENE.—A horrible scaffold scene occerred the other day in the prison yard of Jauer, in Silesia. A young woman, not of the lowest class of the population, was to be beheaded for gratifying her jealousy of her former lover, by an act that led to the death of several persons. The faithless man had deserted her and married another girl. The deserted mistress, to revenge herself, set fire to his house, and several persons perished in the flames. She was arrested, convicted, and sentenced to suffer death. On the scaffold, just at the moment when the executioner bared her neck, and was about to fasten it to the fatal block, she broke loose from him and his assistants, seized the large axe that was to cut off her head, and then defied the dumbfounded officers to take her. They rushed upon her, showered blows upon her head, and, finally, after she had slightly wounded some of them in the scuffle, she was knocked down and handcuffed. She uttered wild, terrible screams all the while, and the executioner and his men tried to dispatch her as quickly as possible. They tore her dress from her shoulders, tied her feet, and dragged her to the block. Although still screaming and resisted, to the best of her power, the leather strap on the block, by which the the victim is drawn foward, was soon slipped over it, and the executioner seized the axe. Unfortunately, the dreadful scene had made him quite nervous, and, on striking her, he missed her neck and cut deeply into her shoulder and back. The blood rushed from the fearful wound, and the screams of the unfortunate woman grew heart-rending beyond description. A second stroke, dealt her a few seconds afterwards, finally put a stop to her sufferings.

THREE men were recently convicted of murder in Texas and sentenced to be hanged within a month, unless the alleged victim turned up alive within that time. Fortunately he appeared, and they were set free.

HONOR THE STRONGEST BOND.

Two centuries ago it was thought an insult in the Highlands of Scotland to ask a note from a debtor. It was considered the same as saying, "I doubt your honor." If parties had small business matters to transact together, they stepped out into open air, fixed their eyes upon the heavens and each repeated his obligation with no mortal witness. A mark was then carved in some rock or tree near by to be a remembrance of the compact. Such a thing as a breach of contract, we are told, was then very rarely met with, so highly did the people regard their honor, and so truly did they fear Him beneath whose eye they performed such acts.

When the march of improvement brought the new mode of doing business, they were often painted by these innovations. An anecdote is handed down of a farmer who had been to the Lowlands and learned worldly wisdom. On returning to the native parish he had need of a sum of money, and made bold to ask a loan of a gentleman of means, named Stewart. This was cheerfully granted, and Mr. Stewart counted ont the gold on his library table. This done, the farmer took a pen and wrote a receipt, and offered it to the gentleman.

"What is this, man?" cried Mr. Stewart, sternly eyeing the slip of paper.

"It is a receipt, sir, binding me to give ye back yer gold at the right time," replied Sandy.

"Binding ye? Well, my man, if ye canna trust yerself I'm sure I'll na trust ye! Ye canna ha' my gold!" and gathering it up, he put it back in his desk and turned his key on it.

"But, sir, I might die," replied the canny Scotchman, bringing up an argument in favor of his new wisdom, "and my sons might refuse it to ye. But this bit o' paper wad compel them."

"Compel them to sustain a dead father's honor!" cried the high minded Scot. "They'll need compelling to do right if this is the road yer leading them, I'll neither trust ye nor them. Ye can gang elsewhere for money! But ye'll find none in this parish that'll put more faith in a bit o' paper than in a neighbor's word o' honor and his fear o' God!"

A PROUD MAN'S BONES.—Of all the farces which disfigure the human soul, not one is more foolish than pride. Its folly was practically illustrated by that surly old cynic, Diogenes, who, while examining a heap of bones, was accosted by Alexander the Great.

"What are you looking for?" asked the proud monarch.

"For the bones of your father, but I cannot distinguish them from those of his slaves," replied the philosopher.

If the cynic was rude he was also right.—In the end the king and the slaves are alike. As both come alike naked into the world, so both leave it alike naked. Both come and go with nothing. How foolish then for the one to lord it over the other during the brief interval between the cradle and the grave! The proudest man on earth is only dust.—Why should he despise his fellows who are made of the same material, and are inheritors of the same destiny? Consider this, O proud heart, and take lessons in the school of Christ, who was meek and lowly in heart.

HAVANESE CUSTOMS.—A letter from Havana says: "The ladies here do not wear anything on their heads. You think at home that our ladies wear next to nothing, but the bonnet worn by our party attracted such attention, because there was anything at all worn, that the ladies feel it a great annoyance to be stared at, and have taken the veil, which is all that is worn. The Havana ladies do not come out till evening, and then come out in their carriages to the plaza or on the drives, to hear the music. The children seem growing up about the street, like weeds by the wayside, uncared for and but little observed. We noticed them from six months to six years old as naked as when they came into the world. This is among the lower classes, but you can see them at any time of the day on most all of the streets of this city, or standing in the doors and windows.—The natives seem to smoke all the time. They come into the dinning-rooms for breakfast, and the first thing after they sit down to the table is to take out a cigar, light it, order the breakfast, smoke and eat. You will often see at our first-class hotels from twenty to thirty men sitting at the table smoking, while ladies are sitting at the same table. I find that Americans pick up the habit quite readily."

DARK HOURS.—To every man there are many dark hours when he feels inclined to abandon the best enterprise, hours when his heart's dearest hopes appear delusive; hours when he feels himself unequal to the burden, when all his aspirations seem worthless. Let no one think that he alone has dark hours. They are the touchstone to try whether we are current coin or not.

RECENTLY, in St. Louis, a crowd had gathered on a corner, and an excited individual, panting with heat, rushed up to the scene, exclaiming, "What's the matter?" Only a man killed, was the reply. "Oh! is that all? I thought it was a dog fight."

KINDNESS TO ANIMALS.

Professor Youatt gives the following interesting fact in one of his valuable works: "A horse in the depot at Woolwich had proved so unmanagable to the rough-riders, that at length no one among them durst even mount him. His mode of throwing or dismounting his rider consisted in lying down and rolling over him, or else crushing his leg against some wall, or post, or paling. All means to break him of these perilous tricks proving unavailing, the animal was brought before the commanding officer with the character of being "incurably vicious," and with a recommendation, on that account, that he should be sold. Colonel Quest, hearing of this and knowing the horse to be thoroughly bred and one of the best-actioned and cleverest horses in the regiment, besought the commanding officer to permit him to be transfered into the riding troops.—This was consented to, and the transfer was no sooner accomplished than Colonel Quest determined to pursue a system of management directly opposite to that which had been already attempted. He had him led daily into the riding school, suffered no whips even to be shown to him while there, but petted him and tried to make him execute this and the other manœuver, and as often as he proved obedient rewarded him with a handful of corn, or beans, or a piece of bread, with which bribes his pockets were invariably well supplied. In this manner, and in no great distance of time, the rebel was not only subdued and tamed, but rendered so perfectly quiet that a little child could ride him. He became, at length, taught to kneel down while his rider mounted, and to perform several evolutions and dances and tricks in the menage, which no other horse in the school could be brought to do. In fine, so great a favorite did he become, that his master gave him the appellation of The Darling."

BOYS ON THE FARM.

The time was when boys were considered of but trifling account upon the farm. They answered to run on errands and to do the light "chores" about the house and barn. To keep them out of mischief when not attending school they possibly did some service astride the horses to mark out corn ground, and cultivate the corn and potatoes. But if ambitious to join the men in the field or elsewhere, they were equipped with the most worthless cast-aside tools, such as rusty hoes, worn out scythes, old fashioned forks, used up shovels, dull axes, battered hammers, unfiled saws, and so on through the whole catalogue of farm implements. They grew weary using them and so would men have done accomplishing only the same amount of labor. It would not be strange if such treatment first planted dissatisfaction in the heart of many a farmer's boy, which finally ripened into utter disgust, the seeking of employment behind the counter of the village store, or perhaps, in something less honorable, which in the end resulted in iniquity and ruin.

We have faith in the farm boys of this day and generation. The nation owes them its sencere gratitude. They are deserving of all the benefits that shall result to them from the new Industrial Schools that are about being establshed. Their early life is a preparatory school that will teach them to appreciate the benefits and blessings that the agricultural colleges are intended to dispense. Honor, encourage and care for the boys of farm agriculture.

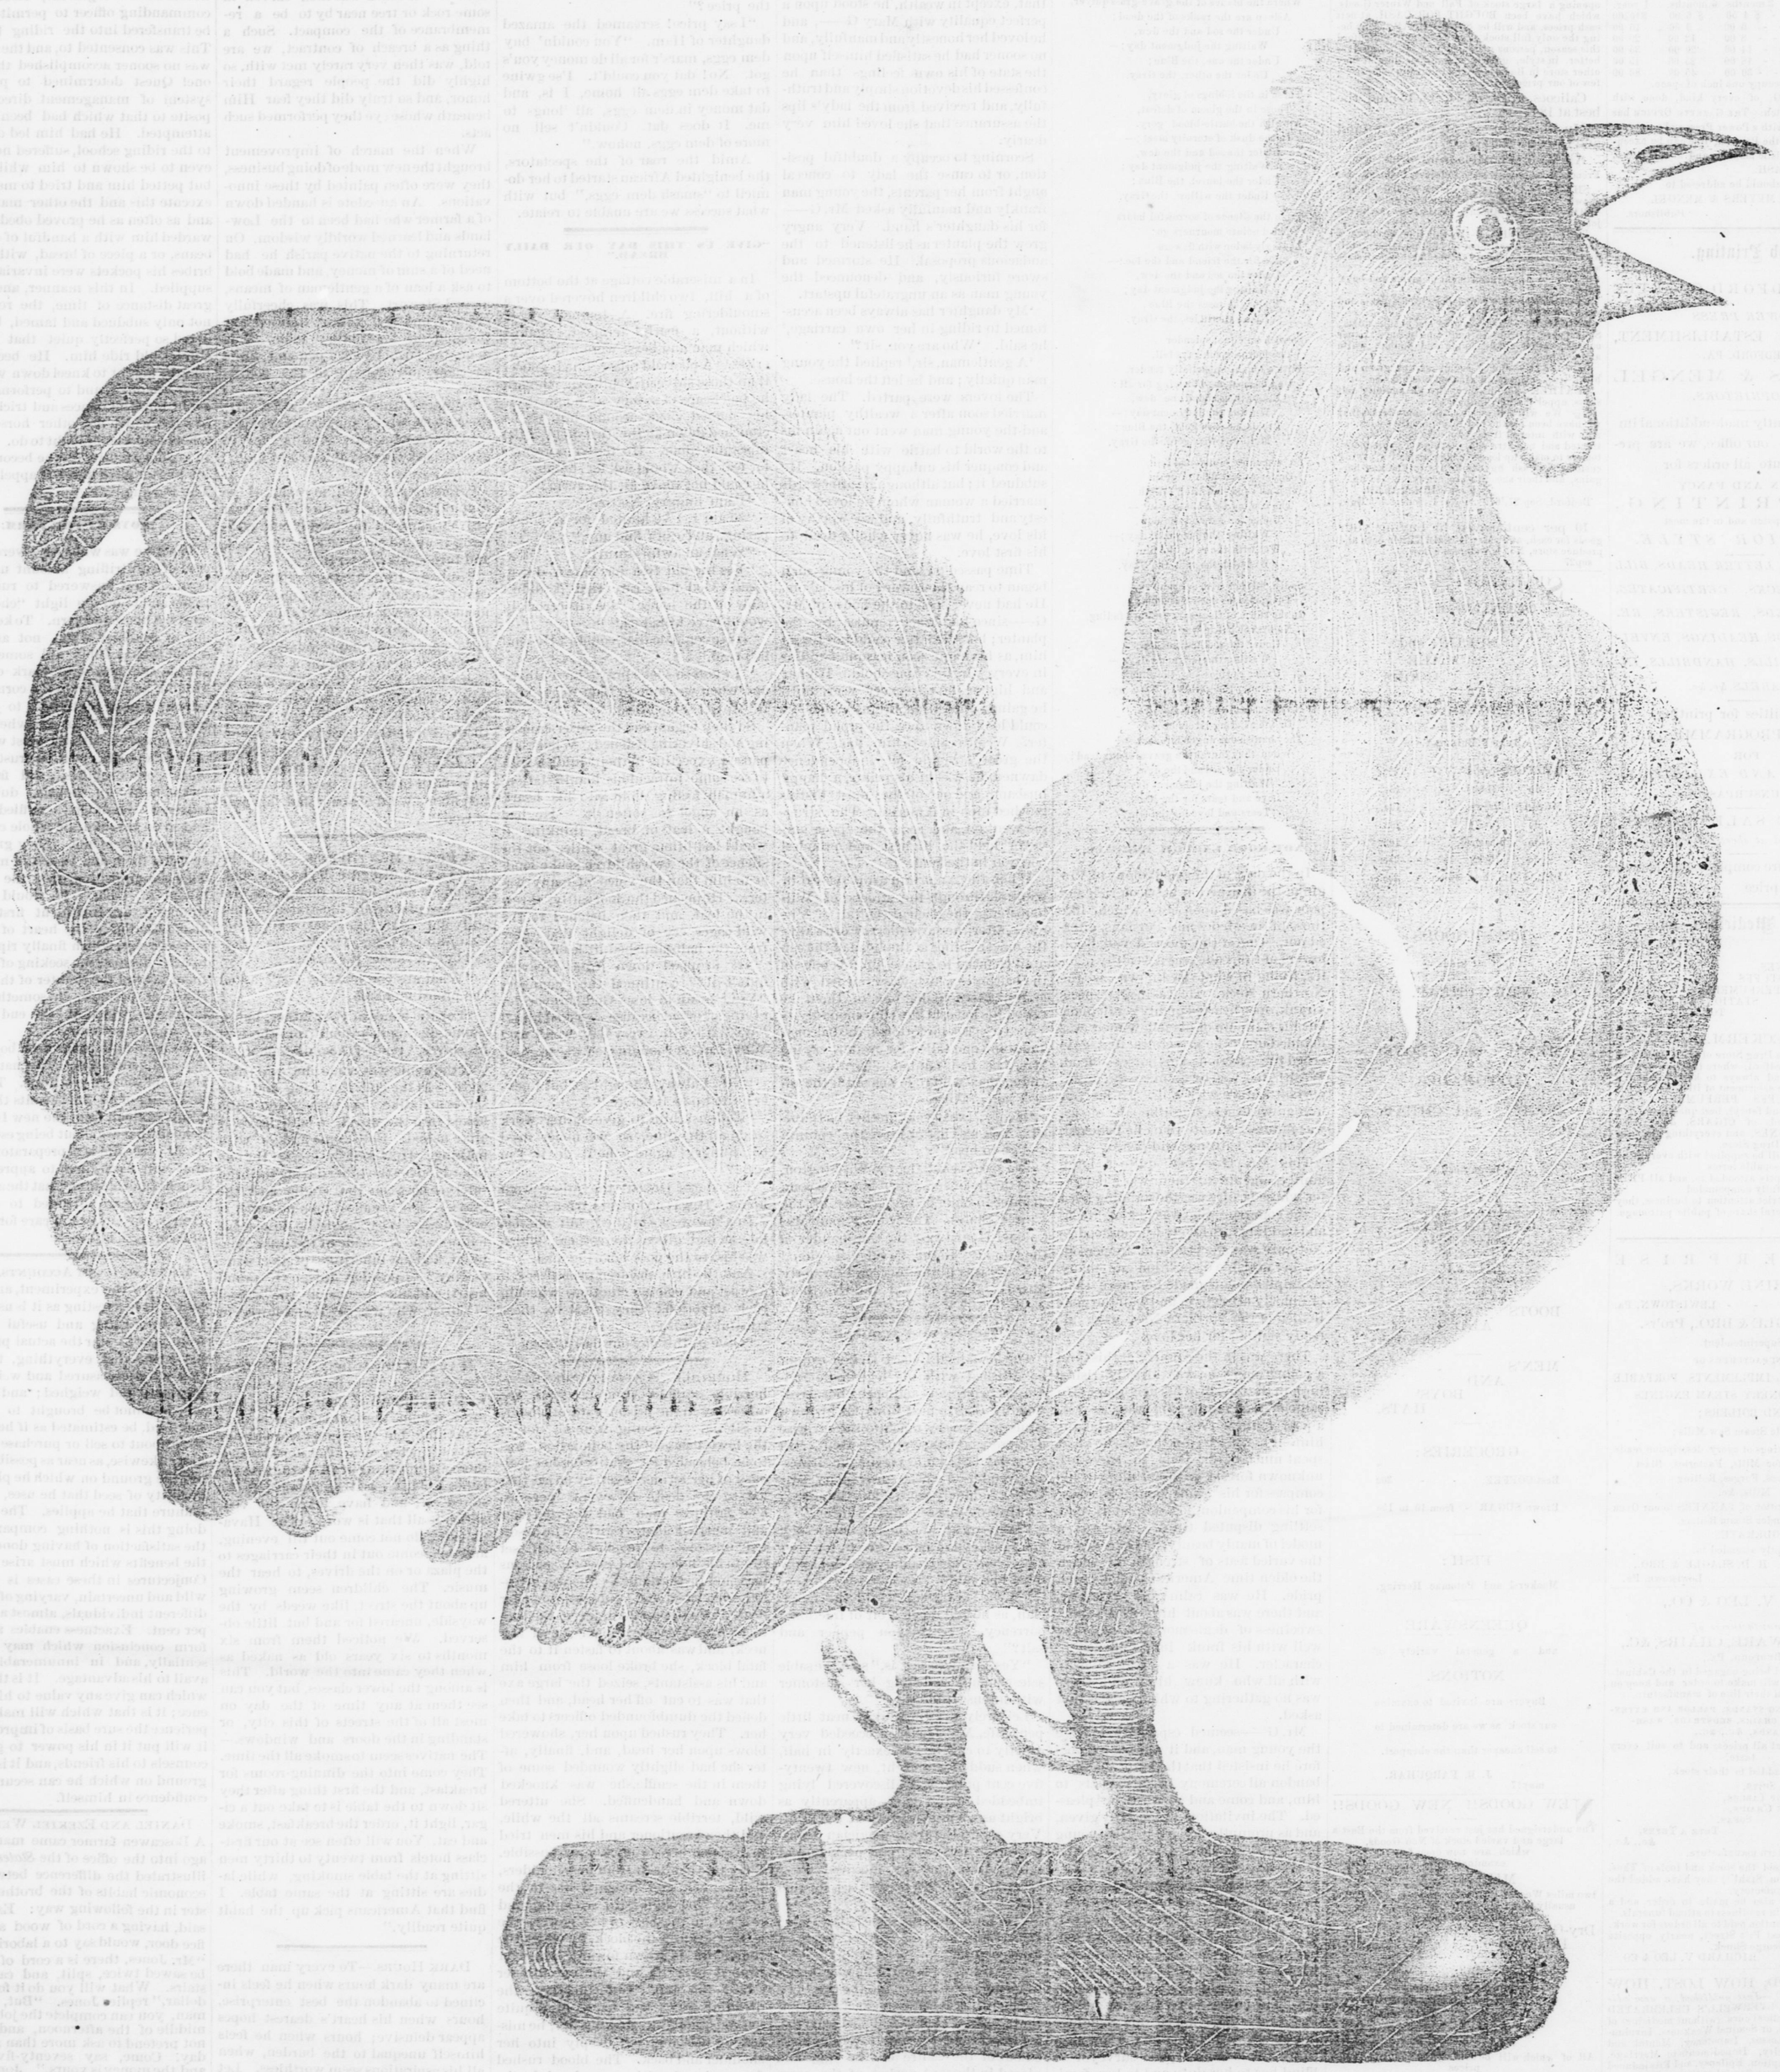
KEEPING FARM ACCOUNTS.—Let any farmer try the experiment, and he will find it as interesting as it is useful, and both interesting and useful to know from year to year the actual produce of his farm. Let everything, therefore, that can be measured and weighed, be measured and weighed; and let that which cannot be brought to a correct standard, be estimated as if he himself were about to sell or purchase it. Let him, likewise, as near as possible, measure the ground on which he plants, the quantity of seed that he uses, and the manure that he applies. The labor of doing this is nothing compared with the satisfaction of having done it, and the benefits which must arise from it. Conjectures in these cases is perfectly wild and uncertain, varying often, with different individuals, almost a hundred per cent. Exactness enables a man to form conclusion which may most essentially, and in innumerable ways, avail to his advantage. It is that alone which can give any value to his experience; it is that which will make his experience the sure basis of improvement; it will put it in his power to give safe counsels to his friends, and it is the only ground on which he can securely place confidence in himself.

DANIEL AND EZEKIEL WEBSTER.—A Boscawen farmer came many years ago into the office of the Statesman and illustrated the difference between the economic habits of the brothers Webster in the following way: Ezekiel, he said, having a cord of wood at his office door, would say to a laboring man, "Mr. Jones, there is a cord of wood to be sawed twice, split, and carried up stairs. What will you do it for?" One dollar," replies Jones. "But, my dear man, you can complete the job by the middle of the afternoon, and you do not pretend to ask more than a dollar a day. Come, say seventy-five cents, and the money is yours." Jones yields and does the job.

"Daniel," he continued, having a cord of wood to be served in the same way, calls the first man who comes along, and says, "I wish you would properly prepare that wood for my stove, and take it up stairs." When the work is done the laborer is asked what is to pay and says, "One dollar, sir." One dollar!" says Mr. Webster, "why, man, you can't afford to work so cheap as that; here is a dollar and a half, and call again when you see a load of wood at my office door."—New Hampshire Statesman.

GLORIOUS NEWS!

Democratic gain in Pennsylvania, 20,000! In Ohio, 40,000! In Indiana, 25,000! Negro Suffrage Defeated in Ohio by an immense majority!



CROW, CHANTICLEER! THE NEWS IS GLORIOUS.

The Country will yet be redeemed.

The Bedford Gazette.

Friday Morning, October 11, 1867.

THE RESULT.

Pennsylvania has done nobly. The people have risen in their might and administered a terrible rebuke to the pestiferous agitators that have kept the country in turmoil and uproar for so many years. The Congressional plan of "Reconstruction" stands condemned by the voice of the people of Pennsylvania. The corruptions and enormities of the Radical party are repudiated by the honest masses. The revolution which threatened to overturn the government, has reached its culmination and is rapidly receding. Let Democrats arouse and push on the good work. We did wonders on last Tuesday, but we can do still better next year. Pennsylvania is safe for the Democracy for President, and "as goes Pennsylvania, so goes the Union." Keep the ball rolling.

THE STATE CLOSE.

Both parties claim the State. A despatch from the Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, dated Oct. 10, claims Sharswood's election by from 3,000 to 8,000. Jordan telegraphs that the returns indicate the election of Williams by a small majority. We are hopeful of Sharswood's election.

BEDFORD COUNTY.

The result in this county is gratifying to every patriotic heart. Judge Sharswood carries the county by a majority considerably larger than that of last year. At this writing the returns are not all received, but we think the Democratic majority in this county is about 350. Schell for Legislature, has about 550; Findlay, abount 400. The whole Democratic County Ticket is elected by handsome majorities. The following returns have been received:

Further comment next week.

THE vote for members of the Legislature in this district is very close. Somerset is reported 1,000 Radical, Schell has about 900 in Bedford and Fulton. Had the 400 Democrats who staid at home, in this county, turned out to the election, the success of Schell and Findlay would have been assured.

OHIO.

This State is reported Democratic. Negro suffrage said to have been defeated by a large majority.

INDIANA

Has gone Democratic by 10,000 majority. Truly it thunders all around.

JETSAM.

Found, the day before the election, a few miles south of Bedford Springs, on the Cumberland road, the manuscript of a Radical speech, supposed to have been dropped by the orator who addressed the Radical meeting at Centerville. The owner can have the same by making proof of his property and paying storage.

LEG BROKEN.—Tuesday afternoon last, Chalmers, a son of Michael Cook of this place, whilst engaged in company with some other boys in gathering walnuts, a short distance from town, fell some thirty feet from a tree and had his right leg broken, below the knee. After lying in great pain a considerable while until his companions gave the alarm and assistance was procured, he was removed to the house of Mr. John Mosser, where the broken bone was set by Dr. Duffield, assisted by Dr. Cook, he was conveyed to the house of his father in the evening.—Fulton Democrat.

DEATH OF AN AGED CITIZEN.—William Truax, a veteran of the War of 1812, died at his home in Thompson Township this county, on last Saturday morning, September 12th, after a short illness, in the 87th year of his age. Mr. Truax was born in the year 1781, in the immediate vicinity where he died and there he lived during nine tenths of a centuary, with the exception of the time he served in the army under Gen. Harisson.—Fulton Republican.

CAUTION TO VETERANS.—Our exchanges are cautioning veterans throughout the country against parties representing themselves to be sent from Washington, with instructions to soldiers and claim agents for the collection of additional bounties, and also stating that the soldiers of 1861 are entitled to one hundred and sixty acres of land.—The object of these parties appears to be to obtain the dates, number of regiment and officers' signatures as they appear upon discharge papers; with these dates forged applications for pay would probably be made out.

A NOBLE RESPONSE.—Too much praise cannot be given to the noble response with which the Washington Library Company of Philadelphia are meeting in their patriotic endeavors to raise the required funds for the endowment of the Riverside Institute, a home for the gratuitous education of soldiers' and sailors' orphans. The plan adopted by the company has been subject to careful deliberation, and has received the endorsement of eminent legal authority. The trustees selected to disburse the money thus raised are well-known citizens of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and their names should be a sufficient guarantee to those who would aid in rearing one of the noblest charities that ever thrust itself before the people. Every subscriber to the stock, which costs but one dollar per share, not only receives a fine steel-plate engraving, worth at retail fifty per cent more than what is paid for the stock, but is also guaranteed some present in the great distribution of the $300,000 worth of presents which are to be awarded to the stockholders. The three largest presents are worth $70,000. Each shareholder has an equal chance to obtain one of the largest presents. Every one will obtain some present and a beautiful engraving. EXTRAORDINARY COINCIDENCES.—The diameter of the earth multiplied by 108 gives the diameter of the sun; the diameter of the sun multipled by 108 gives the mean distance of the earth from the sun; and the diameter of the moon multiplie l by 108 gives the mean distance of the moon from the earth.

A FREE EXHIBITION.—On Tuesday last our usually quiet town was all excitement by reason of a beax brought in alive by Mr. George Finuff. Bruin was captured in a pen, secured and led prisoner into town, creating quite a furore in our streets.—Fulton Republican.

STOVES! STOVES! STOVES!—Hartley & Metzgar have an elegant assortment of cooking stoves, for wood and coal, with all the trimmings complete; also a fine selection of most beautiful parlor and heating stoves, which they offer at very low prices. Call and see before purchasing.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. A. V. C. Schenck will by invitation, deliver a Sermon to the Students of the Normal School, in the Presbyterian church, on next Sabbath evening.

CORRECTION.—In the Washington Library Co. advertisement, on our 4th page, the time for the distribution to take place, now reads "Jan. 8, 1867;" it should read Jan. 8, 1868.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE GLORY OF MAN IS STRENGTH.—Therefore the nervous and debilitated should immediately use Helmbold's Extract Buchu.

DR. SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP. This great medicine cured Dr. J. H. Schenck, the proprietor, of Pulmonary Consumption, when it had assumed its most formidable aspect, and when speedy death appeared to be inevitable. His physicians pronounced his case incurable, when he commenced the use of this simple but powerful remedy. His health was restored in a very short time, and no return of the disease has been apprehended, for all the symptoms quickly disappeared, and his present weight is more than two hundred pounds.

Since his recovery, he has devoted his attention exclusively to the cure of Consumption, and the diseases which are usually complicated with it, and the cures effected by his medicines have been very numerous and truly wonderful. Dr. Schenck makes professional visits to several of the larger cities weekly, where he has a large concourse of patients, and it is truly astonishing to see poor consumptives that have to be lifted out of their carriages, and in a few months healthy, robust persons. Dr. Schenck's PULMONIC SYRUP, SEAWEED TONIC, and MANDRAKE PILLS, are generally all required in curing Consumption. Full directions accompany each, so that any one can take them without seeing Dr. Schenck, but when it is convenient it is best to see him. He gives advice free, but for a thorough examination with his Respirometer his fee is three dollars.

Please observe, when purchasing, that the two likenesses of the Doctor, one when in the last stage of consumption, and the other as he now is, in perfect health, are on the Government stamp.

Sold by all druggists and dealers; price $1 50 per bottle, or $7 50 the half dozen. All letters for advice should be addressed to Dr. Schenck's principal Office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, Pa.

ESTEY'S COTTAGE ORGANS are still ahead of all competitors and stand unrivalled in POWER, PURITY OF TONE and BRILLIANCY, and all other points which go to make a first-class instrument.
The "VOX HUMANA TREMOLO" is the greatest of all modern improvements on reed instruments. It CHARMS and SURPRISES all who hear it, by its wonderful resemblance to the HUMAN VOICE. Do not confound this with the common tremolo in use. It is entirely different, and far superior to any other.

1867.—"THE WORLD."—1867.
The attention of the public is invited to the claims of "The World" as one of the leading public journals of the country. It is the chief organ of the Democratic Party of the United States, and the foremost advocate of the immediate restoration of the Union. Its highest merits consists in its character as an enterprising and trustworthy newspaper.
The next year bids fair to be a more critical one in the history of our free institutions than even any eventful ones that have preceded it. The first requisite for an intelligent judgment of public affairs is a full and authentic account of facts as they transpire. These THE WORLD always aims to give with consciencious accuracy, and with equal fullness and fidelity, whether they make for or against its own views of public policy. Prompt activity in spreading before its readers every kind of news, in which any part of the public takes an interest, is the first duty of a newspaper, and the facilities of THE WORLD for discharging this obligation are unsurpassed by those of any journal in the United States. Whatever else it may fail in, it certainly will not fail to furnish the news, nor to supply it with such promptitude, spirit, freshness, abundance, variety, accuracy and candor, that no class of readers can miss anything of interest which they wish to find. THE WORLD will publish documents and arguments prepared by political foes just as freely as those prepared by political friends; making its own comments on them, of course, but never suppressing or garbling them because they are calculated to damage its own party. Adverse arguments, which it cannot refute, it is content to leave to make their full impression. THE WORLD accepts this rule because it believes no other is honest; because it conceives that its first duty to its readers is to keep them thoroughly informed on every passing subject of importance. In politics, THE WORLD will continue to be the bold advocate of a Liberal, Progressive Democracy. The unflinching champion of Freedom, Justice, Order and Constitutional Rights. The inspiration of its politics is Freedom restrained by Justice; or, to speak more strictly, Freedom pure and simple, in the largest collective measure; the office of justice being merely to protect freedom from encroachments; Freedom of the individual citizen in his rights of thought, speech, religion and locomotion; in his Right to choose his own food and drink, in spite of meddlesome temperance laws; in his Right to make any money bargains he thinks proper, in spite of foolish usury laws; in his Right to buy and sell in all markets, domestic and foreign, in spite of unjust protective tariffs; in his Right to representation in the legislative bodies which tax him, in spite of unconstitutional exclusions; Freedom of collective citizens to assemble for discussion of grievances; Freedom of all local communities to manage their local affairs without central interference; Freedom in every section of the country from the arrogant and unconstitutional domination of other sections; this large and comprehensive idea of Freedom sums up the politics of THE WORLD, which will never be found wanting to this capital interest of the country and of the human race.
In its accurate Commercial Intelligence and careful, reliable market reports, THE WORLD will continue to maintain its present high reputation. A paper published in the commercial metropolis is naturally looked to for authentic information relating to trade, commerce and finance; and this being a feature in which the THE WORLD prides itself, it boldly challenges comparison with every journal in the metropolis.
EDITIONS.
The WEEKLY WORLD, a large quarto sheet, same size as Daily, is now printed throughout in large type, and has the largest circulation of any weekly journal published, save one. Its extraordinary success since its union with the New York ARGUS has justified the most liberal expenditures, which will make it unrivalled in interest and value to farmers. Published Wednesday.
